Experience Hollywood-Style Fun and Competition at Game Show Studio

Ever dream of spinning the big wheel, naming the right price, or solving the puzzle all while bantering with a celebrity host?

Game Show Studio in Roseville allows friends, family, and colleagues to live their game show dreams in an immersive 60-minute team competition. The space at Rosedale Center feels like stepping into a Hollywood studio, complete with a spotlight, glittering backgrounds, audience applause, and a live host leading the matchups. Game Show Studio adds its own zany challenges to the mix, including dance battles and karaoke duels.

Gameshow Studio opened in 2023, offering a new entertainment experience for groups ranging from family birthday bashes to bachelorette parties to corporate retreats. Last summer, Twin Cities father-daughter duo Tom and Emma Polusny purchased the Gameshow Studio locations in Roseville and Eden Prairie with ambitious plans to grow the business.

Gameshow Studio is one of several newer businesses in Roseville that offer people an opportunity to socialize and play in person.

"This is very much what people are craving these days. There is such a draw online, but people want to be able to experience things with other people," Tom Polusny said.

The immersive experience and the live host and producers really set Game Show Studio apart, the new owners say.

"The secret sauce to what goes on at Game Show Studio is the talent we have. We have actors and comedians from the Twin Cities entertainment community and they're really, really good at pulling out the best in people. They really create that fun atmosphere," he said.

Game on!

The City of Roseville is home to several indoor, immersive gaming and entertainment venues for families and adults.

The game show experience is personalized for each group with "HR-appropriate" questions and jokes for business clients, and slightly more saucy material for bachelorette parties and adult groups. Groups can keep it simple or add catering to their events.

Tom Polusny, a former casino executive for three decades, has a firm footing in the entertainment and hospitality industry. Emma Polusny is learning the business, but she's already proven she's good under pressure and understands a thing or two about showmanship. Emma Polusny played professional hockey in Sweden for three years, before returning home in March 2025 to go into business with her dad. Before that, Emma was the star goalie of the St. Cloud State University women's hockey team and was named the Western Collegiate Hockey Association Goaltender of the Year in 2021-22.

She also earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration at St. Cloud State during that time, which she said is now coming in handy.

Emma Polusny said they're looking into expanding their Roseville space so there's more room for socializing, especially for larger groups. They'd also like to grow their traveling show business. Gameshow Studio can bring games to other locations in the Twin Cities.

"Roseville is really centrally located, and we see it as a great place to grow," Emma Polusny said.
